

From 2024-25 academic session, RCOEM will transform into Ramdeobaba University

Nagpur: In a significant stride, Shri Ramdeobaba College of Engineering and Management (RCOEM) has been transformed into self-financed Ramdeobaba University (RBU), effective from 2024-25 academic session. The transformation marks a pivotal moment in the institution's illustrious journey, poised to elevate its status and expand its academic horizons.

Leading the charge as the founding president/chancellor of RBU is SS Mantha, an esteemed academician and visionary leader. A former chairman of All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE), Mantha brings a wealth of experience and expertise in his new role. His leadership promises to steer RBU to new heights of excellence and distinction.

"We are excited to embark

Structured into five distinct schools, Ramdeobaba University will offer enhanced avenues for learning, research, and community service on this new phase in our institution's legacy," said Mantha. "Becoming a university symbolizes our progression and maturity as an academic entity. We eagerly anticipate offering enhanced avenues for learning, research, and community service to our students and the wider community," he added.

Maharashtra Government, recognizing RCOEM's unwavering commitment to excellence, granted approval for the establishment of Ramdeobaba University.

RBU will be structured into five distinct schools namely, School of Engineering Sciences, School of Electrical and Electronics Engineering, School of Computer Science and Engineering, School of Management Studies and School of Humanities and Sciences.

It will offer a comprehensive array of programmes — 33 Undergraduate Programmes and 36 Postgraduate Programmes — designed to equip students with cutting-edge skills and knowledge.

Established in 1984 as a self-financed autonomous institute, RCOEM has been a beacon of educational innovation under the visionary leadership of its founder chairman Banwarilal Purohit, currently the governor of Punjab and administrator of Chandigarh.

Named after the revered 14th-century saint, Shri Ramdeobaba, the institution embodies his ethos of service to all communities, irrespective of caste and creed. The legacy continues under the stewardship of Satyanarayan Nuwal, chairman of the sponsoring body and general secretary Rajendra Purohit, chairman of Bhartiya Vidya Bhavan, Nagpur.
